Attention Grain Marketers! SC Grain Inspection Service has been relocated

In order to better serve the grain growers, dealers, and handlers, the South Carolina Grain Inspection Program headquarters has been relocated to a more central, more convenient location in the state. The Grain Inspection Service is now housed in the old Gold Kist facility at 494 Camden Road in Vance, SC.

The South Carolina Grain Grading and Inspection Service works with producers, brokers, receivers, food processors, export marketers, and other related avenues of grain movement to inspect and certify the quality and cleanliness of grain produced or shipped into South Carolina as grain moves through normal marketing channels.

The Grain Inspection Program provides an appropriate grade to a grain sample. Since grain is marketed according to quality, growers and marketers depend on the reliability, impartiality, honesty, and integrity of the state's inspectors.

Fred Faulk of Charleston, who has been with the Department for ten years, serves as Chief Grain Inspector. He said, "Samples of wheat, corn, soybeans, and other small grains can be accepted here right here in the Grain Belt of South Carolina. No longer will growers need to take time out of their busy schedule to take samples to Columbia."

Jack Dantzler, Director of the SCDA Grading and Inspection Services, said, "We are very excited about the move down to Vance because being located at a more centrally located site will allow us to provide better service to our grain dealers and handlers."

For more information about the Grain Inspection Program, call Fred Faulk, 803-492-3832 or 803-556-6403.

Commissioner

How sweet it is!

South Carolina is known for a lot of sweet things. Iced tea for one, which I'm enjoying while writing this. But we sure grow a lot of sweet stuff--peaches, strawberries, watermelons. Now we can add one more to the list with sweet onions.

How sweet it is! This new crop of South Carolina sweet onions found their way into some of our good soil, and now they'll be finding their way into the marketplace. And I have to tell you that I certainly enjoy a good onion on a grilled hamburger or in a salad.

These onions are being grown in Lexington, Barnwell, Bamberg, Calhoun, and Orangeburg Counties by several farmers. This year there will be more than sixty acres planted in South Carolina with plans to increase acreage as consumer demand increases.

The sweet onion is a sweet deal for South Carolina. Consumers have the opportunity to try a new local product. At the same time, they're keeping those dollars local which is also a sweet deal for South Carolina.

At the South Carolina Department of Agriculture, we have been encouraging consumers to "Buy South Carolina" for four years now through our Certified SC Grown campaign. I see this new sweet onion crop as another way that growers are diversifying their product mix to provide consumers with a local choice. What it tells me is that farmers believe in what we are doing to create new opportunities and some are taking it to the next level.

South Carolina Beekeepers Summer Meeting

The South Carolina Beekeepers Association will host its summer meeting at Clemson University, Clemson on July 15-17. The meeting will be held in the Poole Agricultural Center Auditorium.

Meeting registration will begin at noon in the lobby of the Poole Agricultural Center on Thursday, July 15, and the meeting will end at noon on Saturday, July 17. There will be a $10 registration fee for association members ($15 family) and a $15 registration fee for nonmembers.

The meeting will begin at 1 p.m. on Thursday with a 1-day beginner level beekeeping short course which will be taught by Mike Hood and other instructors.

Featured speakers for the general sessions and workshops to be held on Friday and Saturday will be Maryann Frazier from Penn State University, Mark Carroll from the Carl Hayden USDA Honey bee lab in Tucson, Arizona, Laurence Cutts from Chipley, Florida, Ohad Afik from the University of Georgia honey bee lab, Athens, Georgia, and Jerry Freeman from Hamburg, Arkansas. Some of the topics to be covered will include: Africanized honey bees in Florida, honey bee health and nutrition, varroa mite and small hive beetle control, the chemical world of honey bees, new beetle traps, pesticide residue analysis, an update on colony collapse disorder in the U.S., beekeeping in Israel, and many other talks on beekeeping. On Friday afternoon, speakers will lead in small-group workshops where beekeepers will have the opportunity to discuss many topics relative to beekeeping.

Friday evening activities will include a barbecued pork/baked chicken dinner ($7/plate), horseshoe pitching contest, smoker lighting contest, and great fellowship with other beekeepers. A honey and beeswax competition will be held during the meeting.

All beekeepers or anyone interested in beekeeping are invited to attend for a good time of education and fellowship. For meeting information and lodging arrangements, contact Mike Hood, Executive Secretary - SCBA, 864-656-0346, mhood@clemson.edu or visit www.scstatebeekeepers.org.

How sweet it is!

For years Lexington County has been a national leader in green onions and now with a few acres we're seeing where South Carolina can work its way into the marketplace with sweet onions. There is certainly an established market for sweet onions, and once consumers realize they can be grown right here in South Carolina, we believe they'll want to support our farmers with their sweet onion dollars.

Chris Rawl, whose family has farmed in Lexington County since the 1700s, said they recognized there was a good market for sweet onions and were looking for a new niche. "Our acres are just a drop in the bucket for what South Carolina can consume," Rawl said of the sweet onions. "I can foresee a much bigger market here locally."

Sweet onions are a winter crop that are planted in fall and harvested in the spring. Planting occurs from November 1 through December 31 and are harvested around mid-April to June. One farmer, new to any vegetable production, told me that the schedule for onions will work very well with the management of his cotton crop. It's good to see our traditional farmers mixing in some new crops.

Sweet onions have a light golden-brown color and when cut open reveal a creamy white interior. They are ideal as an ingredient in cooking and baking or as a flavor garnish on hamburgers and other dishes. Green sweet onions with tops are now available in limited quantities and dried onions will reach the marketplace in the next couple of weeks. I believe there will be two 'brands' packaged, but they should be carrying the Certified SC Grown logo.

I encourage shoppers to look for these sweet onions while in the produce aisle and for chefs in restaurants to use them on their menus. I am convinced these onions are a great product and one people will enjoy. Don't forget the other sweet stuff we grow will be coming in soon. With the wet winter and early spring, crops were planted late and will be a little later than their usual time coming onto the market.

Consumers who are interested in purchasing locally grown sweet onions and other local produce should know what to do to find it -- look for the Certified SC Grown logo wherever you shop. By the way, our merchandizing team should be getting into the grocery stores later this month to get the material up. But, if you don't see Certified South Carolina Grown products, tell the produce manager to get with it.

I think you'll enjoy these new local 'sweet' treats.

Tomato-Broccoli Salad

- | | |
|----------------------------------|--------------------------------|
| 1 (8 ounce) package spiral pasta | 3 tablespoons grated |
| 1 ½ cups fresh, chopped broccoli | Parmesan cheese, divided |
| 2 cups fresh, diced tomatoes | ½ tablespoon Italian seasoning |
| 3 tablespoon shredded | ¼ teaspoon salt |
| Italian- style cheese | 1 cup Italian dressing |

Cook pasta according to package directions. Drain pasta well, place in a bowl and cool. Stir chopped broccoli and diced tomatoes into drained pasta. Mix two tablespoons of each of the cheeses together with the seasoning and salt. Stir cheese mixture into tomato-broccoli-pasta mixture. Toss with Italian dressing. Sprinkle with the remaining cheeses. Yield: 6 servings.

USDA Invites Applications for Renewable Energy Funding

The United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) is seeking applications to increase the production and use of renewable energy sources. Funding is available from four USDA, Rural Development renewable energy programs authorized by the Food, Conservation, and Energy Act of 2008 (Farm Bill).

Eligible projects include installing renewable energy systems such as wind turbines, solar, geothermal, biomass, anaerobic digesters, hydroelectric, and ocean or hydrogen systems. Funding may also be used to purchase energy-efficient equipment, add insulation, and improve heating and cooling systems. In fiscal year 2009, this program helped fund 1,485 R.E.A.P. projects in 50 states, the commonwealth of Puerto Rico and the Western Pacific Islands.

In addition to the R.E.A.P. program, Secretary Vilsack announced that USDA is also planning to accept applications for three other renewable energy programs: the Biorefinery Assistance Program, Repowering Assistance Program and the Bioenergy Program for Advanced Biofuels. Details on how to apply will be released later in the Federal Register.

South Carolina's first deadline for applications to compete for funding was May 17. All applications received by this date will be scored, ranked, and considered for funding for the first round of state allocation of funds. The remaining deadlines are June 1, June 15, and the final deadline will be 4:30 p.m. June 30. At the end of each deadline, all applications received will be ranked according to their priority score, and considered for funding. This consideration of funding will be based upon the availability of funds remaining in the state allocation, and for those applications that are unable to be funded from our allocation; they will be forwarded to the national office to compete for funding.

For more information, contact Shannon Legree, USDA Rural Development Business and Cooperative Specialist, 803-253-3150.

FSA's DCP Sign-Up Ends June 1st

Laurie C. Lawson, State Executive Director of the USDA Farm Service Agency, reminds farm producers that the FINAL date to enroll in the Direct and Counter-Cyclical Payment program is June 1. "Last year we had an extension beyond the June 1st date. This year we don't," says Lawson. "June 1st is the final date to enroll each farm a producer operates and wishes to receive payment for 2010."

FSA's DCP program sign-up started October 1, 2009, and runs through June 1. In fiscal year 2009, FSA's DCP payments made to South Carolina farmers totaled $40,217,988.

For more information, contact your local Farm Service Agency office.

South Carolina 4-H/FFA Meat Goat Project

The South Carolina 4-H/FFA Meat Goat Project will kick-off on Saturday, June 19, at the Newberry Fairgrounds. Participants in the Meat Goat Project will learn how to feed and care for their market goats, keep records such as expenses and weight gain, and log in activities associated with their animals. They will also learn how to show their goats in the show-ring, and they will have the opportunity to participate at number of shows across the state. This project teaches young people how to be caring and responsible and helps build character and self-esteem.

The goats used in the project are purchased from South Carolina meat goat producers. Producers interested in supplying animals can contact the individuals below.

To participate, participants must be at least five years of age (as of January 1, 2010), and not older than 19 years of age (as of January 1, 2010). Applications are available from the local Extension Office, or contact Tonia Gibson, 864-910-4157 or Kim Eubanks, 803-924-4186.

Conservation Programs Protect Soil, Water, Wildlife

Landowners Encouraged to Apply by September 30th for Prioritized Funding

September 30 is the deadline to apply for priority assistance from the Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) for two of its Farm Bill programs.

NRCS provides financial and technical assistance to help South Carolina landowners address natural resource concerns, promote environmental quality, and protect wildlife habitat on property they own or control. The cost-share funds are available through the Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and the Wildlife Habitat Incentives Program (WHIP), both administered by NRCS.

EQIP helps farmers improve production while protecting environmental quality by addressing such concerns as soil erosion and productivity, grazing management, water quality, animal waste, and forestry concerns. EQIP also assists eligible small-scale farmers who have historically not participated in or ranked high enough to be funded in previous program sign ups. WHIP assists landowners who want to improve wildlife habitat or restore natural ecosystems on their land.

There is a continuous signup for these programs; however, to increase your chances of funding, apply by September 30. Funding selections will be announced in the second quarter of 2011. Producers interested should visit their local USDA Service Center as soon as possible to prepare their applications.

Visit www.sc.nrcs.usda.gov for more information, including eligibility requirements.

NRCS Issues Request for Cooperative Conservation Partnership Proposals

USDA NRCS seeks to initiate partnership agreements with eligible entities to enhance conservation outcomes in South Carolina

Ann English, State Conservationist for the USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) in South Carolina, announced a call for proposals from eligible partners for projects to help owners and operators of agricultural and nonindustrial private forest lands improve their natural resources through the Cooperative Conservation Partnership Initiative (CCPI). The deadline to submit a proposal is May 27.

Potential partners include federally recognized tribes, state and local units of government, farmer cooperatives, producer associations, institutions of higher education, and nongovernmental organizations with a history of working cooperatively with agricultural producers. As part of the partnership agreement, approved partners may also help facilitate the submission of producers' program applications, or they may provide additional technical or financial assistance to participating agricultural producers or provide other resources as defined in the partnership agreement.

For more detailed information, visit www.sc.nrcs.usda.gov/news/SC_CCPI.html.
